However, if your work performance is not up to the required standard, or you are considered to be generally unsuitable, we may either take remedial action (which may include the extension of your probationary period) or terminate your employment at any time. HOURS OF WORK & REMUNERATION

Your normal hours of work are not variable; however, your working pattern may vary. Your normal hours of work are 24 per week averaged over any 3 days between Monday and Sunday, as agreed with your manager. Actual start/finish times will vary. Break(s) of 60 minutes per day are unpaid. For the purposes of WTD (working time directive) a 26 week reference period which is 130 working days, applies. You will be required to hand in a timesheet on a weekly basis for monitoring purposes. You will be directed to take time off if your Manager considers this average limit is likely to be exceeded.

You may only work less than the 8 hours per day contracted and leave work early with the signed permission of your manager. If you have accrued overtime this will be deducted from any short hours resulting from requested early finishes. If you have not accrued overtime then you will only be paid the hours you work.

Overtime will be paid at your basic hourly rate from Monday to Friday. This will normally be paid in the following week unless you make an agreement with your manager to take time off in lieu or save for up to 4 weeks; to be noted and signed by your manager on your weekly timesheet.

If a Saturday or Sunday is worked then your hourly rate plus 50% is paid. 4 hours minimum. As directed by your manager, any employee finishing early without authorisation will be paid actual hours worked.

If a Saturday or Sunday is worked then your hourly rate plus 50% is paid. 4 hours minimum. An 8 hour day rate is payable only if agreed by your manager, any employee finishing early without authorisation will be paid actual hours worked.

The European stand down rate is a standard day rate and this can substitute a working day in the current or following week. These days count as 0 in respect of WTD.

Annual holidays will be paid at a minimum of your weekly daily pay. In addition, any weekly overtime earned in the previous 52 weeks will be averaged and added to this rate.

You should refer to the current published rates and pay and additional conditions which are available from your manager.
